E. Phillips Oppenheim's New Novel

As fascinating a story of modern life as any novelist has yet conceived, and one that arrests the mind by its fine strenuousness of purpose is

A LOST LEADER

For his latest hero Mr. Oppenheim has taken a modern leader who has elected to stand aloof from the conflict of the political world, but he has created a strong, distinct personality, and not merely exploited one already familiar.

Illustrated by Fred Pegram. Cloth. $1.50

We believe it will pay you to make a special play on

By EDWARD PEPLE

Author of "THE PRINCE CHAP"

THIS novel is one of those large performances, carefully studied in its historical and traditional backgrounds and executed with great power and romantic feeling, which appear only once each few years, and occasionally sweep the country. It is a work of great breadth and fulness, replete with the romance of the period, making the barbaric age live again in all its splendor and excess. Through all, and commanding all situations by sheer force of beauty and personality, treads Semiramis, always the Queen, the dictator, the winning, seductive woman.

With Frontispiece. 12mo, $1.50

NOTE ALSO THAT

THE LOST PRINCESS

is a novel of great beauty, delightfully written, and an exceptionally good love story—this in addition to its very stirring and up-to-date quality as a novel of adventure. So this, too, is worth putting to the front a bit. Advise people to buy it and see what happens.

THE HELPMATE

Miss May Sinclair's First Novel Since "The Divine Fire"

Ready To-Day $1.50

This is the very human story of a young married couple and their friends. Perhaps its keynote is struck where the husband thinks his wife "too perfect to be the helpmate of his imperfections." Whether he remains of that opinion the reader must find out. The tale makes a moving plea for tolerance and sympathy. Among the striking characters, besides the author's usual able portraits of men, are three women and a child. Tho there are tense and at times tragic situations, the story is mellowed by humor.

A uniform edition of the novels of May Sinclair is now ready (see below). THE HELPMATE will increase the steady demand for them.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. have ready to-day "A Lost Leader," a fascinating story of modern life by E. Phillips Oppenheim. His "leader" has elected to stand aloof from the conflict of the political world, but his strong, distinct personality makes him a force to reckon with at the telling moment.

SAALFIELD PUBLISHING CO. produce excellent reasons to persuade their customers that a good stock must be laid in of "The Outbursts of Everett True," which is full of humor and must cheer everybody. Everett True conducts a vigorous campaign against public bores and boors and inflicts punishments we all have longed to bring about.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have ready this week "To Him That Hath," by Leroy Scott, author of "The Walking Delegate;" "The Road to Happiness," by Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler, telling of the world's search for true happiness and where it can be found; "Daffodils—Narcissus and How to Grow Them," by A. M. Kirby, issued uniform with "Roses" and "Lawns;" and "Hymns Every Child Should Know," edited by Dolores Bacon. In October this house will publish a novel of Booth Tarkington's and one of some other well-known author, at net prices.

HENRY HOLT & CO. publish to-day "The Helpmate," Miss May Sinclair's first story since "The Divine Fire," which has been so widely discussed during its serial run in the pages of The Atlantic Magazine. The tale shows decided gain in the technique of fiction writing and its subject matter is of enduring psychologic and ethical value. It is a fine study of the subtle, eternal differences between the natures of man and woman, and a new proof of the old French proverb, "To understand all, is to pardon all." A uniform edition of this original writer's stories is now ready. The Holts may be congratulated on having secured "Alice-for-Short" and "The Helpmate" in one season.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation "The Kenton Pines; or, Raymond Benson at College," by Clarence B. Burleigh, with illustrations by L. J. Bridgman, a description of life at Bowdoin College in the 80's, which completes the Raymond Benson Series; "The Great Year," by A. T. Dudley, a story of college sports at Exeter, with illustrations by Charles Copeland, forming the fifth volume of the Phillips-Exeter Series; "Four Boys in the Land of Cotton," by Everett T. Tomlinson, the second volume in Our Own Land Series, describing the life in the Southern States of the boys who went to the Yellowstone in the first volume of the series; illustrations are by H. C. Edwards; also new popular editions of J. T. Trowbridge's novels, "Cudjo's Cave," "The Three Scouts," "The Drummer Boy" and "Martin Merrivale."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will have ready in September "The Domestic Adventurers," by Josephine Daskam Bacon, recounting the domestic and sentimental delights and trials of three young women who keep house in town and country; "The Crested Seas," by James B. Connolly, a volume of good sea stories of men and ships that sail from Gloucester; "Major Vigoureux," by Quiller-Couch, a dramatic narrative of likable people and what befell them on a little island off the coast of England; and "The Harrison Fisher Book," the first collection ever published of the drawings of this artist, with an introduction by James B. Carrington. Also nearly ready are "The France of To-Day," a brilliant account of the intimate life of the French people, by Barrett Wendell; "Inquiries and Opinions," essays by Brander Matthews; Oliver Herford's "The Astonishing Adventures of a Pen and Ink Puppet;" "Nursery Rhymes from Mother Goose;" and "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson," in two volumes, uniform with the successful Biographical edition.

"The object of this kindergarten serial," the author tells us, " is to bring to the level of the child's mind a sense of man's social, moral and spiritual relationships. Basing the plan on the principles of co-operation and interdependence I begin with a unit, the child, and trace through him the many other units necessary, that must act and interact between nature and the various artisans of the world ere the child's livelihood be possible. Branching from these principles, as exemplified in the social life, the same laws are traced through the animal and vegetable kingdoms."

Chambers, Robert W: The younger set; il. by G. C. Wilmshurst. N. Y., Appleton, 1907. c. 7+513 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Members of New York's younger fashionable set furnish the characters. Their romances and tragedies differ only in degree from those of the worldly-wise people whose fortunes were the subject of the author's "The fighting chance." The novel is intensely modern, evolved chiefly through a witty dialogue, and set in an environment of wealth and strenuous living. The many-sided question of divorce comes up, and there is a problem of heredity-insanity this time. The wild pranks of a set of Fifth Ave. children, who are part of a beautifully described home life, are in contrast with the ruined life of their uncle, an ex-army officer, whose career is cut short through the desertion of his young wife.

"The thesis that the concept of the state in constitutional law must be discriminated from the concept of the state in international law is the outcome of a line of inquiry opened by the preparation of a paper for the Political Science Seminary of the Johns Hopkins University on the topic of 'Suzerainty.' An investigation of the authorities on this subject disclosed a veritable chaos; . . . the hypothesis is here advanced that each of these two theories has an exclusive sphere of utility and fundamental validity within the field of political phenomena."—Introduction.

Houghton, Stephen Chase. The master language: an outline of the principles and rules of a proposed international auxiliary language. Rome, N. Y., Stephen Chase Houghton, 1907. c. 2+33 p. O. pap. (Not for sale.)

In the summer of 1900 the Société Philomatique de Paris inaugurated a movement looking to the devisement and adoption of an artificial language, adaptable to the requirements of international intercommunication in general and to the needs of science in particular—a language to be used as a vehicle for conveying standard scientific works to the readers of all nations. The present pamphlet is the author's contribution to the subject, and is sent out for criticism and suggestions. The words of "the master language" are adopted or derived from the Latin or the Greek. It has twenty-three letters and twenty-one sounds. The spelling is phonetic. The pronunciation is that of the Roman system of pronunciation of Latin.

A typical modern American woman of fashion with her only son and friends meets Clem, a rich miner's daughter at a fashionable summer resort. Clem is beautiful and wholly unconventional, having always travelled about with her father. The mother fears her son is becoming infatuated and invites Clem to spend a week at her summer home, hoping to impress on the son how "impossible" she would be as a wife. Her visit there and its consequences make the story. Introduces several fine characters.

The author is judge of the 61st Judicial District of Texas. The story is a defence of the motives of the South and Jefferson Davis in entering into the war between the states. The characters are a New England gentleman travelling through a Southern state a few years after the close of the war; his host and hostess for a few days, typical Southern aristocrats; and their faithful old ex-slave Ned. Many of the Northerner's prejudices are removed through many interesting conversations between the four.

The financiering and building of a Western railroad is the theme of this new novel by the author of "The grafters." The narrative revolves about the strong personality of Stuart Ford, the superintendent and general autocrat of the Plug Mountain branch of the Pacific Southern. Ford is a type of the young business man of to-day. Well educated, forceful and resourceful, neither reverses nor hard work seem to daunt him. He has a plan for extending his road and making it more useful and valuable. How he raises capital, fights his enemies, circumvents their spies, and finally succeeds is a story rich in romance and dramatic incident and not without its little love interest.

An English M.P., a leader on the Liberal side, suddenly and without explanation gives up his seat and seeks oblivion in the country. He is a brilliant man of genius whom his associates will not allow to be forgotten. In a political crisis he is sought out, a beautiful woman being made to play the part of temptress and bring him back to political life. He is ambitious and honorably loves the woman, but there is something in his past that he will not explain that is dragging him to the earth. Scenes from political and fashionable English life make the background. The mystery of course is explained.

Madame Ristori, the great Italian actress, died in Rome, Italy, the 9th of October, 1906, aged 84. The largest part of her long life was spent upon the stage; she played in all parts of the world and came in contact not only with celebrities of the stage, but the great people of her times in art and literature, etc. Her memoirs are rich in anecdotes of Rachel, Ernesto Rossi, Salvini, Booth and prominent authors of the 19th century. In addition there is a critical analysis by Mme. Ristori of several of the famous plays in which she appeared—"Mary Stuart," "Medea," "Elizabeth," "Macbeth," "Myrrha," by Alfieri; "Phaedra," by Racine, etc. Richly illustrated with portraits in costume of Ristori and many of her contemporaries.

While conducting laboratory classes in electrical engineering in the School of Technology, Manchester, Eng., the author has felt the need of a laboratory manual suitable for that portion of the student's training usually called "preliminary grade" and preceding the more advanced work on dynamos and motors. To successfully carry on a large class without some such help is an impossibility, the author believes, and hopes that this attempt to meet an undoubted want will prove of some service to teacher and student alike. The book contains, besides chapters on the more purely physical measurements of resistance, E. M. F., and Current, special chapters devoted to the potentiometer and calibration of electric measuring instruments.

"The development of the motor-car engine and the successful installation of steam turbines for land and marine use have been the means of directing more attention to the subject of engine balancing. The smooth running of an engine depends mainly on two factors: a more or less uniform tongue on the crankshaft and a good balance of the inertia forces of the engine. The latter forms the subject-matter of the present work; the former cannot be left without any mention, a chapter is therefore devoted to it."—Preface.

Has occupied in all over ten years of research, study and labor. Owing to its peculiar typographical structure the author was compelled to set up the entire work himself and have it electrotyped page by page. Another peculiarity of the work consists in presenting a new and independent view of the age and authority of the four gospels as now received. The sole arguments for this view have been derived from a close analytical examination and comparison of the gospels themselves.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 24, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"POSTAGE PAID."

WE print elsewhere a letter from the American Baptist Publication Society to the American Publishers' Association which tells its own story. Publishers in general have, we believe, adhered to the practice of adding postage in mailing net books, and this practice has a considerable advantage in the way of protection to a local dealer who can offer to his customer the book at the net price free from postage. On the other hand, if mail order houses, or bookstores cultivating a mail business, offer to send such books postage free—possibly coupling with this offer special inducements on non-copyright books—the local dealer is put at corresponding disadvantage. A rule which is sometimes enforced and sometimes not—here yes and there no—often is worse than no rule at all. The uncertainty as to the addition of postage is peculiarly bothersome in the educational trade, as has been evident in compiling the Educational List. The practice of publishers differs so widely that it is difficult often to learn whether a star should be added to the retail price in the case of a given list or of a given book.

The practice of including postage in the retail price of a book instead of adding it to the net price is a decided disadvantage to the publisher, who has to perform in that case the office of a retailer without getting corresponding compensation. It is, therefore, to the interest of publishers in general to maintain a strict rule in this particular. On the other hand, there is a good deal of pressure in the contrary direction, and the question is one of those mooted ones which it is difficult to decide either theoretically or practically. But the Publishers' Association in general should recommend one system or the other and each individual publisher should make clear what his practice is. Uncertainty of prices is one of the worst difficulties with which a retail dealer has to contend.

IT has been gratifying to note the almost universal commendation with which the appointment of Mr. Morgan as Postmaster at New York has been received by the press and by others who have had occasion to express an opinion. The appointment is one of the best fruits of the merit system, and puts at the head of postal administration in the most important publishing centre of the country the man who for years has been, as was Charles Gaynor in his day, the right-hand of successive postmasters and who has done much of the real work of the office while political appointees have been the nominal heads. Mr. Morgan has earned his way up step by step, as had his former chief, Mr. Cortelyou, and his success is an encouragement to every clerk in the Post Office and to every official in the government service. It should be added that Mr. Willcox, although in a sense a political appointee, has made a most successful administration previous to his promotion by Governor Hughes into a more remunerative and perhaps even more important office, and that it is greatly to his credit that he rounded out that career with the act of justice of commending so persistently to the President the appointment of Mr. Morgan as his successor.

WE printed in full Mr. John B. Alden's letter to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY except as to its comment on his new editorial project, in accordance with the settled policy of opening the columns of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to all criticism which deals in a reasonable way with trade questions. We regret to note that Mr. Alden is printing otherwise impeachments of the good faith of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and accusations of bad faith in taking his advertisement and then commenting adversely on the subject of it. It is an editorial principle of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY not to be influenced in its comments pro and con by advertising or the lack of it, and the printing of an advertisement proffered to us, no matter what the price, does not commit this journal to commendation or even to silence when we think there is subject of fair criticism. We trust that this is a statement unnecessary to most of our readers, but we make it for the benefit of those who may not have understood our position.

PRINTING AND PUBLISHING IN THE U. S. IN 1905.

THE United States Bureau of the Census announces the publication of Bulletin 79, presenting the detailed statistics of the printing and publishing industry at the census of manufactures of 1905. This bulletin was prepared by William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the census.

The printing industry possesses an importance which cannot be measured by capital invested or by the volume and value of product. Analysis of the printer's calling has become to a noteworthy degree an analysis of the general prosperity of the nation. Therefore interest in the progress and prosperity of printing is not confined to those who are connected with the industry, as is frequently the case with other callings, but is shared by the entire community.

The total number of establishments in the printing industry in 1905 was 26,422, a number larger than was reported for any other industry. The increase reported from 1900 to 1905 forms a striking exception to the prevailing tendency toward consolidation, for it was proportionately greater than from 1890 to 1900. Hence the product of this industry continues to be contributed by a great number of small establishments, accomplishing noteworthy results with a small capital, operated by men of independent thought and action, and contributing materially to the intellectual and financial growth of the country.

The capital required in 1905 to conduct the printing and publishing business was $385,008,604. It was approximately double that required in 1890, and it was doubtless due to a considerable degree to mechanical changes which have taken place in this industry during the past ten or fifteen years.

The total value of products reported in 1905 was $496,061,357. During the brief period from 1900 to 1905 the increase in value of products was nearly double that from 1890 to 1900, or, in absolute figures, $149,006,927 compared with $71,601,915. Had the per capita value of products been the same in 1905 as in 1850, the entire value of products of the industry would have been but $52,007,588; on the other hand, had the per capita production in 1850 been the same as it was in 1905, the total value of products of the industry at the earlier census would have amounted to $141,470,444, or almost ten times as much as the actual amount recorded.

Among the ten industries having value of products in 1905 exceeding $320,000,000, printing and publishing ranked seventh, having advanced to that position from tenth in 1880. Printing and publishing reports one establishment to every 3076 inhabitants, while at the opposite extreme is iron and steel, which contributes but one establishment to every 134,000 inhabitants.

Of the total number of establishments in the entire industry, about one-third were exclusively book and job establishments, one-sixth exclusively newspapers and periodical establishments, and over one-half were combination establishments—that is, producing both book and job printing and newspapers and periodicals. In value of products the exclusive establishments were practically on even terms, the amount reported for book and job printing being $186,759,503 and for newspapers and periodicals, $184,736,800; but in the combination establishments the value of newspaper and periodical products greatly outweighed the value of book and job printing. The entire value of products distributed between the two general classes was $233,230,842 for book and job printing and $256,816,282 for newspapers and periodicals. The increase for newspapers and periodicals from 1900 to 1905 was somewhat greater than that shown for book and job printing. This was principally due to the stationary condition of the book and job printing interests in the New England States.

Two-thirds of the total value of products of the industry was contributed by six States—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio and Missouri. These States are also the principal producers in each of the two branches, although in unequal proportions.

Five of the six cities having a population of more than 500,000 inhabitants in 1900 contributed almost one-half of the total value of the products of the industry, or, considered by the two main branches of the industry, 53.9 per cent. of the book and job printing products and 42.9 per cent. of the newspaper and periodical products. New York contributed more than double the value of products of the next largest producer, (Chicago,) and almost one-fourth of the entire product of the industry.

The absolute increase in value of book and job products during the five-year period was unprecedented. From 1880 to 1890 it was approximately $4,500,000; from 1890 to 1900, $28,000,000; and during the half decade from 1900 to 1905, $62,000,000. At this rate the value of products will double in 1910 as compared with 1900. This advance is due for the most part to perfectly natural causes, the general prosperity of the nation in which the printer has fully shared being the principal factor.

EXPORT TRADE OF AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS.

Prior to 1905 no information was secured by the census concerning the circulation abroad of newspapers and periodicals published in the United States. The export trade of publications of all classes is therefore presented for the first time in this bulletin.

Twenty and six-tenth per cent. of the total number of establishments in the United States make some contribution to the total export of periodicals. Every State and territory in the Union is represented, but the bulk of this class of circulation in 1905 was contributed by 4 States—New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Illinois—which contributed 1,533,775 copies per issue, or 80.5 per cent. of the aggregate. The contribution of these States, however, is unevenly distributed between Canada and the other countries of the world, since their proportion of the distinctly foreign circulation was 85.1 per cent. as compared with 76.4 per cent. for the Canadian circulation. The preponderance of the former is due to the fact that New York, which contributed slightly more than half the total for the United States, furnished but 36.7 per cent. of the Canadian circulation as compared with 74.7 per cent. of all the other foreign circulation. Twenty-six States and territories exported more newspapers and periodicals to "all other countries" than to Canada and 24 reported a larger Canadian circulation than "other foreign." Bearing in mind the fact that the population of the Dominion at the present time is approximately 6,000,000, the circulation of American periodicals as shown in 1905 is thus 1 copy per issue to every 6 inhabitants. If the population of Canada were as large as that of the United States, this would be equivalent to a circulation of 13,543,643 copies per issue.

Unfortunately the census of Canada does not report number and circulation of newspapers and periodicals. From other sources, however, the total circulation of Canadian publications may be approximately computed. In 1905 there were, in all, 1058 newspapers and periodicals of all classes published in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland. The total circulation of these periodicals was approximately 2,650,000 copies per issue, thus indicating that the newspapers and periodicals received in the Dominion from the United States equal 37.8 per cent. of the entire circulation per issue of Canadian publications. In short, there is one publication received from the United States to every two and one-half published in the Dominion.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOK DECISION AGAINST A PUBLISHER.

An interesting decision was made by Judge Downing of New Orleans last month in a suit of the Fifth Avenue Library Association of New York against a New Orleans subscriber for the "Redpath Library of Universal Literature," on which $5 out of $49.50 had been paid down as earnest money under a contract of sale in which the title did not pass from the vendor until the full amount was paid. The judge held that as the title did not pass, this was not a sale but a bargain, and referred to the fact that the goods had not been delivered to the defendant, but to an express company not especially authorized by the defendant to receive them for delivery to her. The civil code, which in Louisiana takes the place of common law, specifically provides that such a bargain may be withdrawn from by the forfeiture of the earnest money or amount paid to bind the bargain, or the return of double the earnest money on the part of the vendor, and Judge Downing cited an adjudicated real estate case in which a contract of sale had been voided by return of double the earnest money by the vendor. The decision held that the subscriber had forfeited the $5 earnest money, but that the publishing concern could not recover the balance or enforce delivery. It was at the most a question of damages, where the measure of damages would be the difference between the market value of the books and the price agreed upon to be paid—but the court indicated that even such a case would not hold, under the circumstances.

COMMUNICATIONS.

POSTAGE ON NET BOOKS.

The following letter has been sent by the American Baptist Publication Society to the American Publishers' Association:

American Publishers' Association,
156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Gentlemen: Inasmuch as it is not obligatory for the booksellers to add postage to net books in retailing them, we shall hereafter discontinue the practice of advertising the postage extra on our net publications. The practice of charging postage extra has been a farce from the beginning, as much of a fiction as the old long list price, which was never adhered to by the bookselling trade.

We regret that the publishers cannot agree to require postage in addition to the net price. We hope the time will come when they will require it. Until, however, there is concerted action in this matter we shall publish all net books postpaid at the net list price.

Yours truly,
Chas. M. Roe, Business Manager.

INDIVIDUALIZATION OF THE PRICE OF FICTION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Sir: My attention has been directed to your articles on "Advancing Prices" and "Individualization of the Price of Fiction," which appeared while I was thousands of miles away from business. As the text of those articles was some recent action of my house, and as you ask for contributions to the discussion, I will impose a word upon you.

I am in hearty accord with your apparent impression that "individualized prices for works of fiction" are reasonable and desirable. Our recent step was not quite the only recent one in that direction; the Harper house has given some originality of price and form to Henry James's recent books—apparently agreeing with the rest of the world that if the esoteric quality of Mr. James's recent art would not prevent people from reading him, such a little thing as price certainly would not. In Germany, where the trade in books, (I am not speaking of their contents,) is conducted immeasurably better than anywhere else in the world, uniformity of price for fiction is little known outside of special series and collections. Usually a popular author is published at a popular price, and an advanced author at an advanced price—more advanced than the little sixteen and two-thirds per cent. which the De Morgan books are in advance of the "sellers."

But I notice that despite the advance, one of the De Morgan books is so near a seller as to be a "book in demand" at a great library; and we have not seen the slightest indication that the sale has suffered, or the public or the trade been disaffected, by the price. On the contrary, the sale has been far beyond our expectations, and in addition to its most important encouragement regarding our national taste it gives the minor encouragement that, in a general rise of prices, publishers need not remain at a disadvantage as compared with other traders.

Your obedient servant,

NEW YORK, August 14, 1907. HENRY HOLT.

TRUE ETHICS OF THE BOOKTRADE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The letter from "C.," printed in your issue of July 27, is one that is worth reading, and states some of the evils of the book business in a good, effective manner. I wish to correct two statements, however. The writer states "the current published price of the cloth bound novel is $1.50, but this is a fictitious price to start with, for no retail dealer, in any bookstore from Greenland to the tropics, ever thinks of asking the published price of $1.50." That is an error, as I have always maintained the published price of books—the word net placed after a price, or left out, has never caused me to maintain a discount-giving business. I would as soon think of taking a cup of carbolic acid as I would of giving a discount of 10 per cent. or 20 per cent., or any old discount from the published price. "C." states also that the reprints of copyrights are everywhere retailed at from 40 to 50 cents. I wish to state that they are retailed at 75 cents in my store. My reason for being personal in this letter regarding my business is that booksellers may know that it is possible to go right along and attend to their business in their own way. If, as is the case in this city, all booksellers give discounts from 20 per cent. down or up as you choose to call it, it has never kept me from doing business at full price. I have after many long years in maintaining published prices found it the best solution of "the ethics of booktrade." It has been a matter of pride and honor to uphold the advertised word of authors and publishers. I believe that when firms of the high standing of Charles Scribner's Sons, The Century Co., G. P. Putnam's Sons, The Macmillan Company and others state that the price of a novel, or any book, is $1.50, that it is the honorable course for the retail bookseller to maintain the publisher's advertised word; and also, as the author usually receives a royalty on the advertised retail price, and as his or her name as well as the publisher's is jointly used in the advertised published price, the author's word is thus given regarding the price of the book. If booksellers would only see the unjust results of endeavoring to belittle the word of publishers, and stop their foolish fighting over prices, then I am satisfied a good era in the booktrade would arrive. Is it not foolish for us to complain eternally about the wrong methods of the publishers? Does not the publisher state the price of a new novel? Who cuts the price, is it not the bookseller, either as a department store dealer or as an exclusive book dealer? I am not upholding the publishers' methods, but I do think that booksellers should have sand enough to stand behind a publisher's pledged word about a book, and not constantly try and prove to the public that the publisher's word is not binding.

Sincerely yours,

A. M. ROBERTSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13, 1907.

POSTAL MATTERS.

INJUNCTION AGAINST REMOVAL OF SECOND-CLASS PRIVILEGES.

POSTMASTER GENERAL MEYER was on August 12 enjoined by Justice Barnard, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, from withdrawing from Street & Smith, publishers of the Tip Top Weekly, and Frank Tousey, publisher of the Work and Win series, the permit granted them by the Post Office Department in March, 1907, to mail their publications at second-class rates. An order issued by the department in July last withdrew the permits of these publishers to use the mails at second-class rates.

Justice Barnard's injunction enjoins the Postmaster General, his assistants, deputies, and his subordinates, until further hearing on the petition of the publishers, from revoking the authority heretofore granted to them, and restrains him from refusing to accept the publications for mailing at second-class rates.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL'S PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS.

ON his return from a conference with the President on August 12 Postmaster General Meyer said, at the New York Post Office:

"I shall recommend to Congress in my annual report the establishment of a domestic parcels post service limited to ten pounds, or any other weight that Congress will accept.

"I am also considering the feasibility of recommending the establishment of some sort of postal savings bank. We find that to-day some people are buying postal orders payable to themselves as a means of saving their money. This shows that there is room and need for a postal savings bank which will give the people a chance to deposit their savings.

"I will not advocate an increase of pay for postal rates on any class of mail matter.

"I am considering a plan for the reduction of postal rates between the United States and such countries as we have direct steamship communication with—England, France, Germany—from 5 cents per half ounce to 2 cents. To make a reduction will not require legislation, but joint action by the postal authorities of the interested countries.

"We are also going to experiment with a view to introducing postage stamp slot machines generally. I have been told that a machine can be made from which 5 cent, 2 cent and 1 cent stamps may be bought. This would be a great convenience to the public. I will experiment first in Washington, and then if it is a success it will be introduced generally. A very large plant for the manufacture of the machines would have to be established.

"I also have in mind virtually the revival of the old postal notes, but payable to specified individuals by name. The amount will be limited either to $2.50 or $5.

"I have been considering for some time the establishment of a new delivery of mail at 8 o'clock at night in thickly populated residence districts. There is a very large accumulation of mail here between 6 and 8 in the evening to be delivered on the first morning delivery. It is to relieve that first morning delivery that I contemplate the late night delivery. If the new plan is introduced it will be possible to write a letter and get an answer the same day. Two hundred and twenty-six new carriers would be required. Before taking final action a commission will go over the plan and report the actual cost."

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. LILLA T. ELDER, a writer of children's verse and prose in Little Folks, The Youth's Companion, The Congregationalist, etc., died Tuesday, August 15, at her home, Myopia Hill, Winchester, Mass. Mrs. Elder was born November 28, 1853, in New York City.

REV. DR. GEORGE A. PELTZ, a prominent clergyman of Philadelphia and one of the organizers of the Jamestown (N. Y.) Chautauqua, died August 16, aged seventy-four years. Dr. Peltz was for many years engaged in literary work, and for a long period was associate editor of The Sunday School Times, of Philadelphia. He at one time was secretary of the State Sunday School Association of Pennsylvania.

EDMOND DEMOLINS, writer of the now famous book "In What Does the Superiority of the Anglo-Saxons Consist?" died at Caen, France, August 18, aged fifty-five. Edmond Demolins was one of the most suggestive thinkers of our time, and was the author of remarkable monographs on the different professions. He was director of La Science Sociale, and with De Tourville and Le Play he had much to do with the development of that branch of philosophy.

REV. DR. CHARLES COMFORT-TIFFANY, for many years Archdeacon of New York, died from apoplexy, August 20, at Northeast Harbor, Me. Dr. Tiffany was born in Baltimore in 1829. He studied in Andover Theological Seminary and was graduated from the Universities of Halle, Heidelberg and Berlin. He was author of the "History of the Protestant Episcopal Church," "The Christian Life" and "The Prayer Book." He belonged to the Union League, Century and University Clubs.

PERSONAL NOTES.

CHARLES H. DOSCHER has severed his connection with B. W. Dodge & Co., and has sold his interest to William Rickey, of that firm.

WILLIAM HARVEY MINER, formerly with Burrows Brothers and now with the Torch Press, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will be married on Tuesday, August 27, to Ada Martha Odgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John James Odgers, of Cleveland, N. Y.

WILLIAM H. FIELD has been appointed by the Frank A. Munsey Company to fill its new office of advertising manager. The present system of separate organizations for the advertising departments of Munsey's Magazine and the Argosy combination will remain, but all the separate organizations will be under the direction of Mr. Field, who will have full authority on all matters relating to advertising. Mr. Field will assume his new duties on September 16.

THE NOBEL PRIZES.

THE five yearly prizes provided for by Alfred Nobel's bequest of $9,000,000 for the best achievements in physics, chemistry, medicine or physiology, and literature of an idealistic tendency and the best individual effort toward the propagation of universal peace, are awarded December 10. They amount to about $40,000 each, but are sometimes divided. For instance, in 1904 the prize for literature was divided between Frederic Mistral, the Provençal poet, and Jose Echegaray, the Spanish dramatist. Thus far the literary prize has not been awarded to a writer of English. Sully-Prudhomme, Mommsen, Björnson, Sienkiewicz and Carducci have been the winners besides the two already named.

"Wherefore," says the N. Y. Times, "it is an agreeable surprise to learn that our own Mark Twain has been thought of for this year's literary prize by the Swedish Academy, which always awards that prize. Thought of only, the report says, and then displaced in the minds of the members of the academy by Rudyard Kipling. Perhaps the report is utterly untrue, as it is certainly premature. Perhaps the award will be halved, and Twain and Kipling will share it.

"As the prize is annual and for the best achievement, it seems that Nobel must have meant the best achievement of the year. It is too early yet to say what will be the most excellent work of an idealistic tendency in literature, in the year ending December 10, 1907. It may appear in November and be of such imposing worth as to demand immediate recognition."

The Stockholm newspaper, Tidningen, inclines to think Kipling will surely receive the in no wise empty honor.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS ELLEN GLASGOW has returned to Virginia for the inspiration of her new work, "The Beaten Road," which will be published by Doubleday, Page & Co. this fall. Miss Glasgow has chosen to depict the life of a typical Virginian, Richard Ordway.

THE publication of books about Blake goes on apace. In Paris M. P. Berger has just brought out a large volume entitled "William Blake: Mysticisme et Poésie." In London Arthur Symons will soon publish a book called "William Blake: the Poet, the Artist, the Man."

ANATOLE FRANCE has been writing a work on "Jeanne d'Arc." Any work of his is sure to possess charm, and in this one he has a theme which must have given him a special inspiration. It will probably not be very long before the work is announced in English translation.

G. W. E. RUSSEL, whose "Collections and Recollections" and other books of gossip are pleasantly remembered, has another similar volume in press. He calls it "A Pocketful of Sixpences," from a sentence in one of Lord Beaconsfield's novels—"He was not an intellectual Crœsus, but his pockets were full of sixpences."

An interesting fact has just come to light in connection with the publication by Geo. W. Jacobs & Co. of Alexander Macdonald's "In Search of El Dorado." It appears that Mr. Macdonald, who is a geologist and mineralogist, was one of the first to go to the Klondike, and among the men in charge of his dog sledges was Jack London, author of "The Call of the Wild." In a sense, the origin of that author's work is to be traced to his experiences under Mr. Macdonald.

The father of the late Dean Stanley, who was Bishop of Norwich, travelled in France in 1814 and 1816 and wrote letters home in which he described certain of Napoleon's marshals, Mme. de Staël and other notabilities, and dealt with divers historic scenes, including those of several great battles. These letters have now been edited for publication, and will appear in the autumn under the title of "Travels Before and After Waterloo."

Napoleon as a theme for the historian has not by any means been exhausted, but biographers have for some time been paying more attention to the different members of his family. Under the title of "The Men Bonapartes" A. H. Atteridge has written a volume treating of the Emperor's four brothers and the more remarkable of their descendants. This ought to make a rather fresh and interesting publication.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Putnam's Monthly for September will contain "A Day in Cranford," by Josephine Tozier, illustrated by E. H. New; a criticism of "Recent Books on Shakespeare," by William A. Rolfe; and "The College of the City of New York," by A. I. Du P. Coleman, with many illustrations.

The Fortnightly Review for August has an instructive and original article on "Robert Burns and Charles Dickens," by J. M. Sloan, who holds that Burns and Dickens meet in the reverence of great men and the love of the common people, and reminds his readers that Comyns Carr has asserted that "every great man thinks Dickens a great man."

The September Century will make special appeal to those who love memoirs with further extracts from Horace Traubel's remarkable daily record of conversations with Walt Whitman in his old age in Camden, N. J., with much of interest of Whitman's estimate of John Burroughs, his war memories, his ideas on reading, and his general philosophy of life.

In North American Review for August 16 Edmund Clarence Stedman advocates the claims of Poe, Cooper and Bryant to monumental tablets in the Hall of Fame; A. Maurice Low enumerates and characterizes the leading journals of Japan in an article entitled "The Yellow Press of Japan:" and Mackaye's "Sappho and Phaon" is reviewed by Clayton Hamilton.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

The Press Bureau of the Congo Independent State has issued a pamphlet in reply to "King Leopold's Soliloquy," written by Mark Twain.

Macmillan & Co., London, have just published for the Jewish Historical Society of England "A History of the Jews in England," by Albert M. Hyamson.

The View Post Card and Novelty Co., 1022 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, direct importers and manufacturers of souvenir cards, call attention to their large stock, and invite the trade to send for full line of samples.

James Pott & Co. recently removed to 214-220 East Twenty-third Street, New York City, notify the trade that their complete fall lines are now ready for inspection in their new show-room.

Dodge Publishing Co. have just ready a second large edition of "The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics," by Charles Welsh, a work in two volumes which has satisfied the expectations of critical readers.

HARPER & BROTHERS have now issued "Barbary Sheep," by Robert Hichens; and "Adventures of Uncle Sam's Soldiers," by General Charles King, John Habberton and others, fully described in our issue of August 3.

W. A. WILDE & Co. will publish in the Famous Indian Series a story by Miss Mary Hazleton Wade, entitled "Ten Indian Hunters," in which are described the every-day life of the Indian and the craft whereby he obtains his living.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in preparation for the early fall a new book by the Rev. Herman Lilienthal, Rector of St. George's Church, Astoria, entitled "Sundays and Seasons," consisting largely of sermons. Mr. Lilienthal's former works have met with considerable favor both here and in England.

DUFFIELD & Co. announce that they have received a cable dispatch from Elinor Glyn in which she promises a preface to the American edition of "Three Weeks," in which she will deny some of the views imputed to her in the storm of discussion this book has roused in England. Richard Price's novel, "The Successor," appears to-day.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have for publication in September the following works of fiction: "Clementina's Highwayman," by Robert Neilson Stephens; "The Sorceress of Rome," by Nathan Gallizier, telling the love story of Otto III. and Stephania, and forming the second book of his trilogy of the mediæval life of Italy; Edward H. Hurt's "Mystery Island;" and Grover Clay's "Hester of the Hills," a story aimed against the doctrine of heredity and unnatural laws.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish shortly in The New Library of Medicine, (edited by Dr. Saleeby,) a volume entitled "The Care of the Body," by Francis Cavanagh, M.D. This subject is treated in a comprehensive manner, beginning with sleep as indispensable to the proper condition of the body, followed by baths, exercise, clothing, the skin, the hair, the teeth, the feet and hands, the eyes, ears, and other subjects—among them habit—which bear upon the state of the body under varying circumstances and occupations.

HENRY ALTEMUS Co. announce for the fall "Poor Richard Jr.'s Almanack;" "Good Stories from The Ladies' Home Journal;" "Thro' the Rye," a guide for thirsty pilgrims in the rye field, by Herman Lee Meader; "The Bachelor's Guide to Matrimony," by Reginald Wright Kauffman; "In Pursuit of Priscilla," a love story by E. S. Field; "The Bible as Good Reading," by Hon. A. J. Beveridge; "Delight," the story of a little girl, by Gertrude Smith; "The Boy Geologist," by Professor E. J. Houston; and "The Ifs of History," by J. E. Chamberlin.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.'s forthcoming books include Part III. of Sir George Trevelyan's "American Revolution," including the Battle of Saratoga, the Battle of Brandywine, and the Battle of Valley Forge. In "Two New Worlds" E. E. Fournier d'Albe will attempt to penetrate the mystery of space and time—from the infinite on one side to the infinitesimal on the other. "Jock of the Bushveld" is the story of a dog, by Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, with a colored frontispiece and numerous other illustrations by E. Caldwell. Another study of canine character is "'The One' Dog and 'The Others,'" by Frances Slaughter, with illustrations.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue shortly "Guides for Vertebrate Dissection," by J. S. Kingsley, of Tufts College, who believes strongly that a student in laboratory work should get his information from the specimen itself rather than from the printed page of a manual, and the "Guides" will therefore not tell a student what he will find, but will tell him what he does find. The first "Guides" to appear will deal with The Dog-fish, The Necturus and The Frog. Each of the "Guides" is complete and issued separately. Other books in preparation include "Darwinism To-day," by Professor Vernon L. Kellogg, of Stanford University; and "Harps Hung Up in Babylon," a volume of poems by Arthur Colton, best known by his humorous story, "The Belted Seas."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will have ready September 14 "The Daughter of Anderson Crow," a new story by George Barr McCutcheon, author of "Graustark," "Jane Cable," etc.; "Those Queer Browns," by Florence Morse Kingsley, author of "The Resurrection of Miss Cynthia;" "The Revelations of Inspector Morgan," by Oswald Crawford, author of "Sylvia Arden;" and Anthony Trollope's "Caldigate," in two volumes. For same date are promised the following juveniles: "A Little Girl in Old Baltimore," by Amanda M. Douglas, whose "A Little Girl in New York" proved so enchanting; "Two Teddy Bears in Toyland," by Elizabeth M. Gordon, illustrated by Charles Wylie; and "Patty in Paris," by Carolyn Wells, who has already described "Patty Fairfield," whom she now takes to the French capital.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co.'s fall season will begin on September 14 with the publication of "The Familiar Letters of James Howell," in two volumes, with an introduction by Miss Agnes Repplier; Thomas Hood's pathetic ballad, "Faithless Nelly Gray," with many amusing illustrations by Robert Seaver; a new edition of Alice Prescott Smith's "Montlivet," with frontispiece in color and decorative cover; Everett T. Tomlinson's new story for boys, "The Campfire of Mad Anthony;" two volumes in the Hart, Schaffner & Marx Series of Prize Essays in Economics, "The Causes of the Panic of 1893," by William Jett Lauck, and "Industrial Education," by Harlow S. Person; Part I. of volume II of Charles Sprague Sargent's "Trees and Shrubs;" a new series of popular poets, in leather bindings at popular prices, including Longfellow, Tennyson, Whittier, Emerson, Aldrich, Holmes, Lowell, Hart, Sill and others; and Hawthorne's "Grandfather's Chair" and William Elliot Griffis's "Brave Little Holland," both in the Riverside Juvenile Classics, popular illustrated editions for children at moderate prices.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

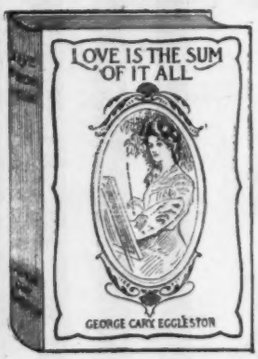
TO BE PUBLISHED SEPTEMBER SECOND

Two Important New Novels

A New Novel by the best of all Writers of Southern Romance

GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON

LOVE IS THE SUM OF IT ALL



A PLANTATION ROMANCE

Illustrated by HERMANN HEYER. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50

With a scene laid in Virginia, just after the time of "Reconstruction," Mr. Eggleston has resumed the manner and method that made his "Dorothy South" one of the most famous books of its time. The two heroines are utterly unlike each other, but each possessed of a peculiar fascination that wins and holds the reader's sympathy. A pleasing vein of humor runs through the work, but "the sum of it all" is the intensely sympathetic love story.

By HAROLD MORTON KRAMER

Author of "Hearts and the Cross"

GAYLE LANGFORD

BEING THE ROMANCE OF A TORY BELLE AND A PATRIOT CAPTAIN

Illustrated by H. C. EDWARDS. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50

Mr. Kramer won golden opinions last year with his first novel, "Hearts and the Cross." He has now entered an entirely different field, and tells a romance of the "times that tried men's souls" in a way that will permit no one to lay it aside when once he has begun it. Gayle Langford, the heroine, is as imperious and unfathomable as she is beautiful, and her patriot lover is possessed of audacity beyond the common lot of man. Action crowds upon action from the beginning to the end of this exceptionally good novel.

NET FICTION

The booksellers throughout the country have expressed themselves very decidedly about net fiction.

We shall publish at least two works of fiction at net prices: the first in October, by Booth Tarkington, and the second by E. F. Benson in November.

Both books, it will be noted, are by well-known authors, whose books would be certain to sell at regular discounts.

We would respectfully ask the trade to study the two books in the hope that their success might help to solve the problem of fiction at net prices.

This Week's Books

The author of "The Walking Delegate" has here written another tale of New York:

TO HIM THAT HATH

By LEROY SCOTT

Missions, thieves, starvation, love, are as faithfully depicted as was the situation of unions and strikes in his successful first production.

Two Points to Publishers

PUBLISHERS of forthcoming books to be issued during the Fall season of 1907 are reminded that the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to be issued under date of September 28, is in many respects one of the most important issues of the year. Booksellers generally find it invaluable in making up their holiday orders and for descriptive selections for their own catalogues and circulars. Librarians also use it extensively in making up their purchase lists for the new season. Note then:

1st. That the dictionary reference list of new books to be issued will be made up as complete as possible from material procurable between now and September 10. It is therefore very important for all publishers to send in early lists in duplicate of their announcements, giving as much data as practicable of all forthcoming works.

2nd. That the number is especially valuable for advertising, since an ad. supplements the reference list and keeps your descriptive announcement immediately before the buyer during the period he is planning for the new season.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual 1907

"The man who first spoke of the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual' as the 'Bible of the book trade' uttered a fitting phrase but used a simile that is open to at least one criticism. If the holy book was as often consulted by the public in proportion as the Trade List is by the bookseller the cry that it is a 'neglected book' would never be heard, for in every shop and in every public library this familiar 'jumbo' in pebbled green is in constant daily use."
—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.

"No bookseller, even the humblest, if he knows his business, can afford to be without the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual,' often spoken of as 'the big catalogue book,' which contains the price lists of all the publishers of importance in the country."—The Newsdealer.

"It sometimes happens, we know, that a dealer in a fit of misdirected economy will try to get along with his last year's Annual, but the experiment soon becomes an aggravation, for he quickly finds out that he cannot afford to have his bibliographical equipment a whole year behind hand."
—The Publisher and Retailer.

GENERAL LIBRARY,

THE OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

BECAUSE Everett True's Outbursts have been made into the most humorous book of the year;

BECAUSE Everett True himself is so human that he always makes one chuckle;

BECAUSE Everett True conducts a vigorous campaign against public bores and boors, and really inflicts the punishment all of us have wished we might administer time and time again;

BECAUSE Everett True makes everybody LAUGH LONG AND LOUD

EVERY BOOKDEALER WILL NEED A LARGE SUPPLY OF
